

Ally Forensic and Scientific Laboratories is a women-owned laboratory facility that aims to solve multiple problems within the forensic DNA community including biased practice and backlogged agencies.

Because we are a private laboratory, we allow for a fair trial to all those involved in violent crime by eliminating the inherent bias established by government funded laboratories. Ally Laboratories will maintain industry leadership through various practices including sexual assault prevention and collection services, as well as proprietary laboratory management and tracking systems that allow our clients to login to their client portal and follow the status of their evidentiary samples. Utah has recently become a "Right to Know" state, meaning that anyone should be able to know the status of their case, but for most laboratories, this means lengthy phone calls and missed voicemails. Our client portal will give the power of knowledge directly to our customers.

Ally Laboratories has a further competitive advantage in the skills and education of the owners and operators. The owners aren't simply scientists, they are also successful businesswomen and share a combined 8 degrees and 18 years of experience in Forensic Science and Toxicology services. This education and experience give us the advantage of performing Ancient DNA Testing and Stable Isotope Analysis to further identify even some of the most degraded remains. These techniques can be utilized in missing persons cases, military cases to identify victims of World Wars, and any further case with degraded samples.

The owners are seeking a total investment of $1.5 Million. $365,00.00 will be a one-time start up expense used for laboratory equipment, while the remainder will be utilized for laboratory construction operation expenses during the first quarter. When operational, the laboratory's annual projected revenue is $7.3 Million.

Investing in Ally Forensic and Scientific Laboratories will prove to be a monumental business move that will bring hope to thousands of individuals who have experienced insurmountable tragedy.
